

Mark Cianciosa is the southwestern regional automation manager at Acieta. Spending the majority of his career solving manufacturing challenges with robotic automation, he excels at helping each customer implement ideal solutions to their productivity and labor challenges. He is passionate about helping manufacturers invest in their long-term future by using robots to achieve business objectives. Growing up in Buffalo, Cianciosa saw first-hand the negative consequences of not investing in manufacturing, and he is dedicated to preventing that from happening to other companies and communities.